About Rubius Therapeutics

Rubius Therapeutics is a biopharmaceutical company that is generating red blood cells and bioengineering them into an entirely new class of cellular medicines. The Company's proprietary RED PLATFORM[®] is designed to genetically engineer and culture Red Cell Therapeutics[™] that are selective, potent allogeneic cellular therapies. Rubius is leveraging three distinct therapeutic modalities — cellular shielding, potent cell-cell interaction and tolerance induction for the potential treatment of rare enzyme disorders, cancer and autoimmune diseases. The Company expects to file an Investigational New Drug application during the first quarter of 2019, for its lead program RTX-134 for the treatment of phenylketonuria.
